The Law of Love - The focus of today's liturgy is "obedience to God's word." We are challenged to "keep the commandments, to walk in the law of the Lord."

In order to keep the commandments, we must first know what they are and then we must understand them correctly. Jesus deals with this problem in the Gospel. The Jews had a law about murder, but they had misread it to mean that one was in the clear as long as one was not actually, personally killing someone. Jesus challenged his Jewish followers to follow the correct interpretation of the law, which meant that they were not to be the kind of people who would kill or would do anything that leads to someone else's death.

We Christians believe that God's "command of perfect love" obliges us to do what is just and right. It is not good enough to stay out of trouble; we must work at setting things right in the world. It is not good enough to give food to the hungry; we must work at making ours a society in which people do not go hungry.

"Give me discernment, that I may observe your law and keep it with all my heart."

The responsibility for alleviating the plight of the poor falls upon all members of society. As individuals, all citizens have a duty to assist the poor through acts of charity and personal commitment. But private charity and voluntary action are not sufficient. We also carry out our moral responsibility to assist and empower the poor by working collectively through government to establish just and effective public policies.

FREE WILL The freedom we all have is not a license to murder, be unfaithful, or tell lies. We can do these things. But we can choose not to do any of them. If we trust God – and God's saving plan for us and for the world – then we will want to be just, to act with righteousness, and to be in right relationship with God, with others, and with the whole of creation. What have I heard today about being right with God? What have I been taught today about right relationship with family and friends? · How will I choose to trust God this day, this week?

Sixth Sunday of the Year

Sirach 15:15-20; Psalm 119; 1 Corinthians 2:6-10; Matthew 5:17-37

Law is often regarded as impersonal. Law is a massive structure that becomes clear only when we break it; then there are fines and penalties to be paid. But what about the person or persons behind the laws?

God's law is the focus of today's readings. The biblical view admits that law is part of human life. But more than that, law is a relationship between the individual, the community, and God. If we are to experience the divine and human enterprise fully, we must seek the heart of the law.

The Sirach passage takes up the theme of free will. The personal dimensions of rules and regulations are stressed: "To act faithfully is a matter of your own choice" (Sirach 15:15). The believer chooses between life (dialogue and community with God) and death (monologue and disruption of community).

Psalm 119 is the longest of all the psalms. Basically it provides a meditation on God's law. A number of synonyms are used for law: precepts, statutes, and words. Response to law is personal allegiance to God. Obedience to law demands all the energy and loyalty of the believer.

Matthew, in this section of the Sermon on the Mount, establishes the relationship of the Mosaic law to Jesus. The heart of religious obedience is not some lifeless statute but Jesus. Righteousness means the moral living out of God's will. The disciple surpasses the legalism of the Pharisees to devote self to God and neighbor. In Matthew 5:21-48 the embrace of law is expanded: Not only is murder prohibited, so too is anger toward neighbor; adultery is wrong and so is the regarding of women as sex objects.

Legislation comes from every direction: local ordinances, state and federal laws, Church law. The Christian discerns the values inherent in law. Our biblical heritage urges us to do more by raising the question: What is at the heart of the law?

QUESTIONS FOR REFLECTION "The eyes of God are on those who fear him; he understands [our] every deed." If so, should we be frightened? Or is God the one who not only understands, but forgives and loves even sinners?

How is it that the Spirit can scrutinize the depths of God? Discuss ways in which the Spirit scrutinizes you.

Jesus is critical of the Pharisees' type of righteousness, which focuses on externals. They make sure everyone sees when they fast, pray on street corners, wash hands, etc. How do these things relate to the inner Spirit of the law? How do they relate to loving God and neighbor?
